

A Level

History

Session: 1974
Type: Syllabus
Code: 804

ADVANCED LEVEL. 804

It is assumed in connection with all Advanced Level papers that the candidate will have undertaken some background reading and that he will not be content to confine himself to the study of one or two of the standard text-books. It is hoped, therefore, that school history libraries will contain a reasonably wide variety of books that can be made available to candidates at Advanced Level.

Candidates must offer two of (a), (b), (c), (d) as follows: (a) Paper 1 or 2 or 3, (b) Paper 4 or 5, (c) Paper 6, (d) one of Papers 7–21.

Candidates are permitted to take three of (a), (b), (c) and (d); they will then be assessed on the best two papers.

Papers 3, 7 and 8 may be taken either as Papers in the subject, History, or as Papers in the subject, Economic and Public Affairs.

For the conditions under which candidates may offer Paper 9, see below.

Each paper will be of 3 hours.

PAPER 1. English History to 1485.

PAPER 2. English History, 1485–1939.

PAPER 3. English Social and Economic History from 1815.

Candidates will be expected to have some understanding of the background of English Economic History before 1815, and to have studied the general historical background of the period after 1815.

A reading list for the guidance of teachers is available.

PAPER 4. European History, A.D. 337–1494.

PAPER 5. European History, 1494–1939.

[In Papers 1, 2, 4 and 5 the choice of questions will be sufficient for candidates to confine their attention to a portion of the prescribed period (e.g. 1485–1714 or 1688–1939 in Paper 2, 1494–1715 or 1715–1939 in Paper 5), but there will be no formal subdivision of the prescribed periods.]

PAPER 6. Ancient History. The syllabus is given on pp. 15–16.

PAPER 7. World Affairs since 1939. The syllabus for this paper is given on pp. 16–18. A reading list for the guidance of teachers is available.

PAPER 8. Structure and Working of British Government. The syllabus is given on p. 40–41.

PAPER 9. Art (Historical and Critical). This paper may be offered either as part of the subject, Art, or as part of the subject, History. Candidates offering this paper as part of History must offer two other History papers and reach a certain standard in both of them. The syllabus is given in Subject Syllabus A.M. I (1974).

PAPERS 10–21. Special Subjects. The prescribed list for 1974 is given on pp. 19–32.

History Project Scheme. See pp. 32–34.

PAPER O. Special Paper. (Home Centres only.)

Candidates will be required to answer two questions in three hours and there will be no restriction on their choice.

The paper is intended to provide candidates with an opportunity of displaying their interests in the broad aspects of History, and credit will be given for evidence of reading and reflection, of powers of judgement and critical appreciation. Between 25 and 30 questions will be set of which about two-thirds will be general historical questions.

804/6. Ancient History

There will be one 3 hour paper, divided into two sections, Greek History and Roman History, but some questions may overlap this division. The Greek section will run from the beginnings to the Peace of Apamea, the Roman section from the Struggle of the Orders till the death of Constantine the Great. Each section will contain not less than 12 questions; candidates will be required to answer any four questions.

Questions on the history of ideas, and on economic and social history, may be among those set; some of the following books may be found useful for this part of the course:

G. Glotz: The Greek City and its Institutions (Kegan Paul).

A. E. Zimmern: The Greek Commonwealth (O.U.P.).

N. Lewis and M. Reinhold: Roman Civilization (Columbia U.P.) (2 vols) (source-materials in translation).

J. P. V. D. Balsdon: Roman Women (Bodley Head, London).

F. R. Cowell: Cicero and the Roman Republic (Pitman; also Penguin).

J. Carcopino: Daily Life at Rome in the Empire (Routledge).

M. Rostovtzeff: A Social and Economic History of the Roman Empire (O.U.P.).

M. Grant: The World of Rome (Weidenfeld and Nicholson).

The following, on more specialized subjects, may also be found of value:

A. Desborough and N. G. L. Hammond: The End of the Mycenaean Civilization and the Dark Ages.

G. S. Kirk: The Homeric Poems as History.

A. J. B. Wace and F. H. Stubbings: Companion to Homer (Macmillan).

T. B. L. Webster: From Mycenae to Homer (Methuen).

C. W. Blegen: Troy and the Trojans (Thames and Hudson, Ancient Peoples and Places series).

M. I. Finley: The World of Odysseus (Pelican).

For reference also

H. L. Lorimer: Homer and the Monuments (Macmillan).

M. P. Nilsson: Homer and Mycenae (Methuen).

804/7. World Affairs since 1939

The aim of the examination in this subject is to promote the understanding of international relations and the evolution of present-day political systems, economic conditions and social life of other peoples.

Candidates will be expected to have such background knowledge as is necessary for the understanding of the topics set out in the syllabus. A book list is available on application.

The paper will be divided into six sections, A to F, as shown below; candidates will be required to answer four questions in 3 hours, taking not more than two questions from any one section. The syllabus for each section is given below together with the main themes on which questions will be set.

14. The Great Rebellion 1642–1658

Candidates offering this paper are expected to have an outline knowledge of the causes of the Great Rebellion. The paper itself is concerned with the political, religious, and social aspects of the first and second civil wars in England and Wales: the negotiations leading to the trial and execution of Charles I (1646–1649): the struggle between Army and Parliament (1646–1653): and the domestic and foreign policies of the Commonwealth and Protectorate (1649–1658). Since it is also concerned with the effects of the Rebellion on local communities, candidates are encouraged to study the history of any one community for which a reading list is given. Questions demanding specific knowledge of the history of particular battles will not be set.

18. Slavery and the Coming of the American Civil War, 1846–1861

It is desirable that candidates who offer this paper should have some outline knowledge of the history of slavery, and of the anti-slavery movement, in the United States before 1846. It is important that they should read some of the recommended documentary material as well as the secondary works.

- R. F. Nichols: The Stakes of Power, 1845–1877 (Macmillan, 1965), chapters 1–7.
* Frank Thistlethwaite: The Great Experiment (C.U.P., 1955), Chapter VII.
S. E. Morison and H. S. Commager: The Growth of the American Republic (O.U.P., 5th ed., 1962), volume I, chapters XXV, XXVI part 4, and XXIX–XXXIV inclusive.
K. M. Stampp: The Peculiar Institution: Slavery in the Ante-Bellum South (Eyre and Spottiswoode, 1964).
B. P. Thomas: Abraham Lincoln (Eyre and Spottiswoode, 1953), chapters 1–12 inclusive.

Allan Nevins: The Ordeal of the Union (2 volumes, Scribner, 1947) and The Emergence of Lincoln (2 volumes, Scribner, 1950). (These are lengthy books, containing much fascinating detailed material. Many candidates would find it profitable to consult some parts of them, e.g. Ordeal of the Union, volume I, chapters 13, 14, and 15 on slavery, or Emergence of Lincoln volume II, chapters 1 and 3 on John Brown or chapter 10 on Lincoln's election.)

19. The Making of Modern England, 1885–1914.

This paper is concerned with the economic, social and political forces which shaped modern England. The period 1885–1914 represents a climacteric in this formative process and teaching should stress the causes and nature of the changes which occurred at that time. No questions will be asked on foreign or colonial history or on specific constitutional issues; structural changes in government, economy and society will be more relevant. The development of political parties, the advent of political democracy and changes in the role of the State will be central topics. Of equal importance will be the main aspects of economic growth during this period, a field containing issues like overseas investment, industrial retardation of State intervention. A third main group of topics will be concerned with socio-political and socio-economic problems: poverty, industrial conflict, welfare and violence, together with the broad question of social reform, will fall under this head.

Teaching should also bring out such sub-themes as religion, feminism, education, jingoism, cultural achievement, political theory and town planning as background.

Material from local or regional history will be welcome if it can be made relevant to the larger topics.

HISTORY PROJECT SCHEME

(Home Centres only)

1. General

Schools are invited to participate in a scheme whereby Advanced Level History candidates may receive credit for an individual study in History. Private candidates are not accepted.

2. Administration of the scheme

(a) The title of the project to be undertaken by each student, together with an outline of each scheme of work and a bibliography, must be submitted not later than 1 May in the year preceding the examination. Outline schemes received after that date will not be accepted. Special forms for submitting outline schemes are available on application to the Publications Department at the Syndicate.

(b) Comments on the suitability of the proposed projects will be sent to schools not later than early July.

(c) A completed entry form for each school which will be issued with the general entry forms for all subjects, must be submitted not later than 20 January in the year of the examination.

(d) The projects must be despatched to the examiners during the last week of March in the year of examination.

(e) The teacher must certify that, except for guidance as indicated in 4 below, the project is the unaided work of the candidate and has not previously been submitted for examination.

(f) Normally candidates will be interviewed by an examiner during May in the year of examination.

(g) A fee of £2.25 per candidate is payable as a contribution to the cost of the scheme; these fees should be paid with the subject entry fees for the examination and should not be sent separately.

3. Titles of projects

Projects on political, social and economic history will be accepted. Topics may be of general historical significance or may be primarily related to a locality. Candidates are likely to gain most from studies which ask a definitive question or attempt to solve a problem. Projects on local history, or those concerned with particular persons or families or buildings, should attempt to show the relevance of such study to national or international history.

A note on the selection of topics, including a short list of some which have proved successful at one school, is available on application.

4. Guidance

Guidance by teachers should be limited to preliminary advice on choice of theme, sources of information, methods of work, and submission and presentation. No further help must be given.

Notes for the guidance of teachers will be available on application to the Syndicate after 1 January, 1973.

5. Submission of the study

Each study should take the form of an essay which must not exceed 5,000 words in length. The essay must be contained within a loose-leaf plain folder not exceeding 14 in. x 10 in. in size; all illustrations must be contained inside the folder. The project must show clearly the purpose of the work, the methods of inquiry adopted, and conclusions reached. The bibliography should include all primary and secondary authorities cited in the text.

6. Original Notebooks or Files

Candidates must bring their notes to the interview.

7. Assessment of the work

Candidates offering a History Project will also offer two written papers as prescribed in the Regulations.

A grading, on the scale 1 to 9, will be awarded for each History Project and will be issued with the results in the other History papers. Candidates receive bonus marks for worthwhile work and these marks will be taken into account in fixing the subject grade. In no case will the subject grade be reduced because of work submitted as a History Project.

8. Return of work

The essays will be returned to schools as soon as possible after the examination.

9. Schools are asked to ensure that candidates read these regulations before entering for the examination.
